propose that a portion of the Gauley River be established as a national recreation area, and that the lower portions of the Meadow and the Bluestone be designated as the State's first wild and scenic rivers. This bill will also allow for much-needed boundary modifications in the New River Gorge National River.

Protecting these rivers in their pristine state will give people the opportunity to enjoy their unmatched beauty for years to come. Federal designation of these rivers will go a long way toward luring more tourists to southern West Virginia. Each year, 700,000 tourists visit the New River Gorge National River. Being part of the National Park System will provide increased awareness-both nationally and internationally-to the recreational opportunities available on these rivers. It will give West Virginia's wild, wonderful rivers more publicity than we could ever buy.

The recently funded New River Parkway, the just-completed West Virginia Turnpike, and the soon-to-becompleted Interstate 64 will enable tourists to visit these areas on modern, safe, and convenient highways. Indeed, West Virginia's interstate system is now among the most elaborate and accessible in the Nation.

The Gauley River National Recreation Area will cover a 24.5-mile segment from Summersville to Swiss. With its boulder-strewn rapids, high ledges, narrow chutes, and tortuous channels, this area provides one of the most spectacular whitewater experiences in the country. In 1986, whitewater recreation on the Gauley alone pumped over $16 million into the local economy.

The Meadow River, from the Route 19 Bridge to its confluence with the Gauley, is in a wild and primitive condition. For rafting enthusiasts, it's even more demanding than the Gauley due to its narrow channel and one of the most pristine rivers in the United States is the Bluestone. Well known for its beauty and magnificent gorge, superb opportunities exist for fishing, camping, rafting, and canoeing on the Bluestone.

The Greenbrier River was also studied under the legislative mandate. The study, conducted by the Forest Service, determined that 133 miles of the river were eligible for Federal protection. Under the provisions of the 1968 Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, 106 miles were classified as scenic and 27 miles were judged to be recreational. The Forest Service recommended that the river be protected by the State Natural Stream Preservation Act—not by the Federal Government through congressional action.

I have received hundreds of letters, numerous phone calls, and have met with many residents of Pocahontas and Greenbrier Counties on the prospect of including the Greenbrier in the system of federally protected rivers. To give people a chance to be heard on the proposal, I sponsored public meetings in Durbin, Marlinton, and Lewisburg. What I heard from my constituents was an overwhelming desire to protect their river—but not through designation as a scenic river.

Moreover, any plan that is put forth to protect the Greenbrier must address the issue of flood control. In 1985, the region was devastated by a flood. Currently, the Corps of Engineers is preparing a feasibility study that will suggest various alternatives for flood protection. This study will be ready for release and public discussion in January 1988.

Based on what I have heard from my constitutents and the unresolved flood control issue. I have decided not to include the Greenbrier River in this legislation. Since there is an enormous interest in protecting the river. I will offer my assistance in developing a local plan that will protect the riverwhile not precluding effective flood control.

Mr. President, without a doubt, the rivers that I have proposed for Federal designation are worthy of inclusion in the system of wild and scenic rivers. Enactment of this legislation will complement the existing New River Gorge National River and greatly enhance the economic development of southern West Virginia through tourism. I urge my colleagues to pass this legislation as soon as possible.

By Mr. COHEN (for himself, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. DECONCINI, and Mr. MURKOWSKI):

S. 1721. A bill to improve the congressional oversight of certain intelligence activities, and to strengthen the process by which such activities are approved within the executive branch, and for other purposes; to the Select Committee on Intelligence.

INTELLIGENCE OVERSIGHT ACT

• Mr. COHEN Mr. President, I am introducing today, along with three members of the Intelligence Committee, Senators Bentsen, DeConcini and Murkowski, a bill entitled the Intelligence Oversight Act of 1987, which is an effort to strengthen the statutory framework already existing in this area and to ensure that Congress will continue to play an active, effective role in the oversight of U.S. intelligence activities, including covert actions.

It is important to recognize at the outset that this bill would place no new restrictions upon the President, either in the conduct of intelligence activities generally or of covert actions in particular. Rather, it is aimed at strenthening the congressional oversight process, by clarifying the responsibilities and roles of both branches and removing the other ambiguities under current law. To be sure, the effectiveness of any law will ultimately depend upon the mutual trust and good faith of both parties, but it nevertheless behooves us—in the interests of good government—to make our mutual responsibilities under the law as clear and certain as we can.

As has been reported in the press in recent weeks, the President has, in fact, taken a number of concrete steps in this direction. These were reported to the Intelligence Committees last August. He has told us that there will not be oral findings in the future, that such findings will not authorize covert actions retroactively, and that all covert programs will be periodically subjected to review. These steps are welcome and commendable. But one is nevertheless obliged to recognize that these are policies which do not have the force of law, which may be subject to exceptions or waivers approved by the President in special circumstances—ones that would be highly classifed-and which are not binding upon any future administrations.

The bill I am introducing today accepts and builds upon the commitments already made to the Intelligence Committees by the President. It does not purport to be the final answer, but it does represent a comprehensive attempt to restructure, and where necessary, improve the current system of intelligence oversight.

Appended to the bill is a lengthy section-by-section analysis which sets forth its purposes in great detail. I wish only to highlight several of them

First, the bill would place all of the laws bearing upon intelligence oversight in one place in the United States Code, and would restructure those laws in a logical, coherent fashion. Accordingly, the Hughes-Ryan Amendment, which was an amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, would be moved to that portion of the intelligence oversight statute which deals with limitations on the funding of intelligence activities. Moreover, the limitation set forth in Hughes-Ryan would be expanded to cover agencies of the executive branch other than CIA which may be used to carry out covert actions. This has been the policy within the executive branch for several years, although Hughes-Ryan itself only applies to CIA.

Second, the bill would eliminate much of the ambiguity under current law by specifying those congressional oversight requirements which pertain to intelligence activities and those which pertain to covert actions—termed in the bill "special activities." Under current law, these requirements are unclear.

Third, the bill would, for the first time, provide explicit statutory authority for the President to authorize covert actions, or "special activities," in support of U.S. foreign policy objectives, provided they are authorized in accordance with the requirements set forth in the bill. As I mentioned at the outset, these requirements do not entail new restrictions on covert actions, but are designed to improve the ability of the Intelligence Committees to carry out their oversight of this vital area.

Recent experience has demonstrated that the current system has numerous flaws. This bill addresses them. It provides for written authorization of covert actions and prohibits retroactive authorizations. It requires the congressional oversight committees to be advised of all findings within 48 hours of their being signed, but permits such notice to be limited to the leadership of both Houses and the chairmen and vice-chairmen of the Intelligence Committees where the President deems such limited notice essential to protect vital U.S. interests. It provides that the Intelligence Committees be made aware of precisely who within Government and outside Government will be used to carry out covert actions, and it puts to rest the notion that the President may authorize, under the rubric of covert actions, activities which would violate the statutes of the United States.

I hope this bill will receive serious consideration, both by my colleagues in the Senate and on the Intelligence Committee and by those outside Congress with an interest in this subject. It represents a balanced, comprehensive approach to congressional oversight of intelligence activities, which, to my mind, would constitute a decided improvement over the current system.

In addition to the bill and a sectionby-section analysis. I am submitting the letter the President sent to the Intelligence Committee which I referred to earlier, and I ask unanimous consent that this material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD. as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That this Act may be cited as the "Intelligence Oversight Act of 1987."

Section 1. Section 662 of the Poreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2422) is hereby repealed

SEC. 2. Section 501 of Title V of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 413) is amended by striking the language contained therein, and substituting the following new sections.

"SEC. 501 GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(a) The President shall ensure that the Scient Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee of the House of Representatives (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "intelligence committees") are kept fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States as required by this title. Such activities shall ordinarily be conducted pursuant to consultations between the President, or his representatives and the intelligence committees, prior to the imprementation of such activities, although nothing contained herein shall be construed as requiring the approval of the intelligence committees as a condition precedent to the initiation of such activities.

(b) The President shall ensure that any Uen intelligence activity or significant intelligence failure is reported to the intelli-gence committees, as well as any corrective action that has been taken or is planned in connection with such illegal activity or intelligence failure.

(c) The President and the intelligence committees shall each establish such procedures as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this title.

(d) The House of Representatives and the Senate, in consultation with the Director of Central Intelligence, shall each establish, by rule or resolution of such House, procedures to protect from unauthorized disclosure all classified information and all information relating to intelligence sources and methods furnished to the intelligence committees or to Members of Congress under this section. In accordance with such procedures, each of the intelligence committees shall promptly call to the attention of its respective House. or to any appropriate committee or committees of its respective House any matter relating to intelligence activities requiring the attention of such House or such committee

(e) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as authority to withhold information from the intelligence committees on the grounds that providing the information to the intelligence committees would constitute the unauthorized disclosure of classified information or information relating to intelligence sources and methods.

(f) As used in this section, the term "intelligence activities" includes, but is not limited to, "special activities," as defined in subsection 503(e), below.

MEC. 601. REPORTING INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES OTHER THAN SPECIAL ACTIVITIES.

The Director of Central Intelligence and the heads of all departments, agencies, and other entities of the United States Government involved in intelligence activities shall keep the intelligence committees fully and currently informed of all intelligence activities, other than special activities as defined in subsection 503(e), below, which are the responsibility of, are engaged in by, or are carried out for or on behalf of, any department, agency, or entity of the United States Government, including any significant anticipated intelligence activity: provided that such obligation shall be carried out with due regard for the protection of classified information relating to sensitive intelligence sources and methods. In satisfying this obligation, the Director of Central Intelligence and the heads of all departments and agencies and other entities of the United States Government in intelligence activities shall furnish the intelligence committees any information or material concerning intelligence activities other than special activities which is within their custody or control, and which is requested by either of the intelligence committees in order to carry out its authorized responsibilities.

SEC. 563. APPROVING AND REPORTING SPECIAL AC-TIVITIES

(a) The President may authorize the conduct of "special activities," as defined herein below, by departments, agencies, or entities of the United States Government when he determines such activities are necessary to support the foreign policy objectives of the United States and are important to the na tional security of the United States, which determination shall be set forth in a finding that shall meet each of the following cond-

(1) Each finding shall be in writing unless immediate action by the United States is required and time does not permit the preparation of a written finding, in which case a written record of the President's deci shall be contemporaneously made and shall be reduced to a written finding as soon as possible but in no event more than fortyeight (48) hours after the decision is made:

(2) A finding may not authorize or sanction special activities, or any aspect of such activities, which have already occurred:

- (3) Each finding shall specify each and every department, agency, or entity of the United States Government authorized to fund or otherwise participate in any way in such activities; provided that any employee. contractor, or contract agent of a department, agency or entity other than the Central Intelligence Agency directed to participate in any way in a special activity shall be subject either to the policies and regulations of the Central Intelligence Agency, or to written policies or regulations adopted by such department, agency or entity, in consultation with the Director of Central Intelligence, to govern such participation.
- (4) Each finding shall specify, in accordance with procedures to be established pur suant to subsection 50 icc. any third party including any foreign country, which is not an element of contractor or contract agent of, the United States Government, or is not otherwise subject to U.S. Government policies and regulations, who it is contemplated Will be used to fund or otherwise participate in any way in the special activity concerned. and
- (5) A finding may not authorize any action that would be inconsistent with or contrary to any statute of the United
- (b) The President, the Director of Central Intelligence and the heads of all departments, agencies, and entities of the United States Government authorized to fund or otherwise participate in any way in a special activity shall keep the intelligence committees fully and currently informed of all special activities which are the responsibility of, are engaged in by, or are carried out for or on behalf of, any department, agency, or entity of the United States Government. In satisfyk ! this obligation, the intelligence committ as shall be furnished any information or material concerning special activities which is in the possession, custody or control of any department, agency, or entity of the United States Government and which is requested by either of the intelligence committees in order to carry out its authorized responsibilities.
- (c) The President shall ensure that any finding issued pursuant to subsection (a). above, shall be reported to the intelligence committees as soon as possible, but in no event later than forty-eight (48; hours after it has been signed: provided, however, that if the President determines it is essential to limit access to the finding to meet extraor dinary circumstances affecting vital interests of the United States, such finding may be reported to the chairmen and ranking minority members of the intelligence committees, the Speaker and minority leader of the House of Representatives, and the ma jorny and minority leaders of the Senate In eitner case, a certified copy of the finding signed by the President, shall be provided to the chairman of each intelligence commit tec. Where access to a finding is limited to the Members of Congress identified hereir. above, a statement of the reasons for limit ing such access shall also be provided.

(d) The President shall promptly notify the intelligence committees, or, if applicable, the Members of Congress specified in subsection (c), above, of any significant change in any previously-approved specia activity

SECTION 1. SEPERI OF HUGHES-RYAN AMERIMENT

Current statutory provisions for intelligence oversight moluos the general require ments to inform the House and Renate In-telligence Committees in Title V I the Na tronal Security Act of 1947, as a mended to 1980, and the requirement of Fresidential approval for ClA cover, action in Section 661 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 as amended 421 USC 2500—the Hugnes-Rvan Amenament . Section 2 of the bill would replace the sathing Section 501 of the Traditional Security Act of 1947 with three new sections that prescribe respectively, general provisions for oversight of all intelligence activities, reporting of intelligence activities other than porting of intelligence activities other than special activities, and approval and reporting of special activities. The revision of current law has three principal objectives. The first is to clarify and emphasize the general responsibilities of the President to story with the Congress through the House and Senate Intelligence Committees to ensure that US intelligence activities are conducted in the mational interest Current has does not fully address the obligations of the President. Not does the existing statute reflect the commitment to commitments with the Congress made by the President as a result of the lessons learned from the

Iran-Contra moures

The second objective is to eliminate un necessury ambiguities in the law Expenence under the current statute has indicaed significant areas where Congressional intent may be subject to misinterpretation by Executive branch officials as well as gaps in the law where Congress and not adquately anunipate the need for statingry guidance. Examples are the uncertain mean int of the requirement to report "in a timely fashion." the strence of an explicit province for written Presidential Pinding. and the need to specify those responsible for implementing covert actions. The aim is to clarify the intent of Congress with respect to eversight of intelligence activities so as to reduce the possibilities for misurderstanding or evacues. For purposes of ciar ity, a distinction is made between the desailed provisions for special activities, which are instruments of U.S. foreign policy, and the requirements for other intelligence acdivites (i.e. collection, analysis counterinteligence; that are less controversial

A third objective is to provide statutory authorit. for the President to employ spe cal act ittes to implement U.S. foreign policy by covert means. Congress has not previousiv done so except to the extent that the CIA was authorized by the National Security Act of 1947 "M periorm Sucr other functions and duties related to intell gence affecting the nameral security as the Nethonal Security Council may from time to time direct Current law requires Presider ME approval and the reporting to Congress of "intellmence operation, in foreign courtries outer than activities intended solely for obtaining necessary intelligence. The overall purpose of this bill is it is a star losson of recent expensions to establish a more effective starthorn tramework for executive tegolitists cooperation in the field of intelligence. Such againstons is not a supranter enables confined between the branches or abuses or power. It can however, held minimize such confined and abuses by emphasizing the mutual obligations of the President and Congress and by eliminating unincessary legal among that their minimizers and so the training unincessary legal among their that invite misunderstanding on both sides.

The new Section 20% of Title Well fire the closes Security Act of 1967 would specify the general suspensibilities of the Fundam and the Congress for assemblish in detailingness activities.

lai Providential Duties and Prior Consultation

Bubsection (a) would place a matutory ob ligation upon the President to ensure that the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the House Permanent Beleci Committee on Intelligence treferred to in the bill at the "intelligence committees"; are kept fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States as required by this title. Current law im poses such duties on the DCI and agency heads, but not or the President himself Overell responsibility should be vested it. the President because of the importance and sensitivity of secret intelligence activi ties that mey affect vital national interests and because the President may have unique knowledge of those metavities that he is best suited to ensure is imparted to the intelligence committees. The terms and conditions for keening the committees "fully and currently informed are those set forth in Sections 502 and 505, discussed below.

in addition, subsection (a) would provide that U.S. intelligence activities shall ordi marily be conducted pursuant to consults mon- between site President ar his repre sentatives and the intelligence committeer prior to the implementation of such activ-. This is consistent with the intentions of the President as stated in his letter of August 6, 1987, to the Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committer. It applies to all U.S. intellegence ac tivities including collection, analysis, coupserimeningence, and special activities Addtional Presidential reporting requirements for special activities are set forth in Section 503, discussed below. This new general provision for prior consultation with the intelliwence committees would supplement current requirements for keeping the commit tees informed of "significant arriginated inselligence activities." The requirement for prior committations is a more complete re flection of the need for encounter-legislature cooperation in the formulation of intelligence policies. For example, the President or his representatives about ordinarily cor. suff the Busilization committees on pro-posed Presidentia. Pindings prior to their approval by the President.

Subsection (8) volide also retain the qualification in current law the nothing contained in the practical control like to practically requirements and the control like to practically requirements as a control of the like include committees as a control of the like the provision of such activities and the like include of the control of the control of the like include of the like include of the like include of the paragraph 50% as a second of the like include of the like include

The purpose is to place an unqualified matutory obligation on the President to ensure reporting of such matters to the committees. The President should establish procedures for review within the Executive branch of intelligence activities that may have been fliegal and for sporting to the intelligence committees when a determination is made dist. Sagge are reasonable grounds to believe that the activity was a violation of the Constitution, statutes, or Executive orders of the United States. The President should establish procedures for the reporting of activities determined to be significant intelligence failures. The surrent provision requires the reporting of an illegal activity or significant failure "in a timely fashion." This language is deleted because of its ambiguity. The intent is that the committees should be notified immediately whenever a determination is made under procedures established by the President in consultation with the intelligence committees.

Another difference from existing law is that the requirement to report illegal activities or significant failures would not be subject to the preambular clauses in the current subsection $01(a) which could be interpreted as qualifying the statutory obligation to inform the intelligence committees.

(c)-(f) Other General Provisions

Subsections (c) through (e) would retain provisions of existing law. Subsection (c) is identical to the current subsection 501(c) that authorizes the President and the intelligence committees to establish procedures to carry out their oversight obligations. Subsection (d) is the same as the current subsection 501(d) that requires the House and Senate to establish procedures to protect the secrecy of information furnished under this title and to ensure that each House and its appropriate committees are advised promptly of relevant information. Subsection (e) repeats the current subsection 501(e) which makes clear that information may not be withheld from the intelligence committees under this Act on the grounds that providing the information to the intelligence committees would be unauthorized disclosure of classified information information relating to intelligence sources and methods.

Subsection (f) states that the term "intelligence activities," as used in this section, includes, but is not limited to, "special activities," as defined in subsection 503(a), discussed below.

SECTION 503. REPORTING INTELLIGEN 32 ACTIVITIES OTHER THAN SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

The new section 502 is intended to be substantially the same as the current requirements of subsections 502(a)(1) and (2) insofar as they apply to intelligence activities other than special activities. This distinction between special activities and other intelligence activities is discussed more fully with respect to section 503, below.

Fully and Currently Informed

Section 502 would require the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) and the neads of all departments, agencies and other entities of the United States involved in intelligence activities to keep the intelligence committees fully and currently informed of all intellagence activities, other than special activities as defined in subsection 503/6/, which are the responsibility of, are engaged in by or are carried out for or on behalf of any department, agency, or entity of the United States including any significant anticipated intelligence activity. The special procedure for prior notice to eight leaders in the current clause (B) of paragraph 501(a)(1) would be deleted since it was intended to apply to special activities, to be governed by section 50%, discussed below.

Section 502 also would provide that, in satisfying the obligation to keep the committee fully and currently informed the DCI and the heads of all departments and agencies and other entities of the United makes involved in intelligence activities are interesting in patential the intelligence activities fother than special activities which is requested by either of the intelligence accumulates in order to carry out its authorised responsibilities. This requirement is subject to the provision of sensitive intelligence source and methods discussed below.

Protection of Sensitive Bources and Methods The obligation to keep the intelligence committees fully and currently informed under this section is to be carried out with due regard for the protection of classified information relating to sensitive intelligence sources and methods. This provision is simihar to the second preambular clause in the current subsection $01(a) which imposes duties "to the extent consistent with due regard for the protection from unauthorized disclosure of classified information and information relating to intelligence sources and methods" The proposed new language more accurately reflects and is intended to have the same meaning as the legislative history of the similar preambular clause in existing law.

The first preambular clause in the current subsection 501(a) would be deleted. It imposes obligations "[t]o the extent consistent with all applicable authorities and duties. including those conferred upon the executive and legislative branches of the Government." This clause creates unnecessary ambiguity in the law, because it has been interpreted by some as Congressional acknowledgement of an undefined constitutional authority of the Executive branch to disregard the statutory obligations. Recent experience indicates that legislation qualifying its terms by reference to the President's constitutional authorities may leave doubt as to the will of Congress and thus invite evasion. Legitimate Executive branch concerns are adequately met by the provision for due regard for protection of sensitive intelligence sources and methods, discussed above

SECTION 803. APPROVING AND REPORTING SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

Special activities (or covert actions) raise fundamentally different policy issues from other U.S. intelligence activities because they are an instrument of foreign policy. Indeed, constitutional authorities draw a distinction between Congressional power to restrict the gathering of information, which may impair the President's ability to use diplomatic, military, and intelligence organigations as his "eyes and ears." and Congressional power to regulate covert action that goes beyond information gathering. There is little support for the view that such special activities are an exclusive Presidential function. Congress has the constitutional power to refuse to appropriate funds to carry out special activities and may impose conditions on the use of any funds appropriated for such purposes.

Under current law, however, the Congres sional mandate is ambiguous, confusing and incomplete There is no express statutory authorization for special activities the requirement for Presidential approval of special activities applies only to the CLA, and Presidential approval procedures are not specified. There is a question whether Congress has intended that the President have authority to conduct special activities which are inconsistent with or contrary to other statutes. The statutory requirements for informing the intelligence committees of special activities are subject to misinterpreta tion, and the scope of activities covered by the law is undefined. This bill seeks to remedy these deficiencies so that covert acdiens ore employed, pith paper patherte. Say in the stillings injuried as determined by the electric proposestations of the American people—the President and the Congress—through a process that protests no energy server.

tal Presidential Pindings

Bubsection (a) would provide statutery authority for the President to authorize the conduct of special activities by departments, agencies or entities of the United States when he determines such activities are necessary to support the foreign policy objectives of the United States and are important to the national security of the United States. This determination must be set forth in a "Pinding" that meets certain conditions. The importance of this requirement is underscored by Section 3 of the bill, discussed later, which prohibits expenditure of funds for any special activity unless and insued a presidential Pinding has been insued.

The current Presidential approval provision in the Bughes-Ryan Amendment (22 USC 2422) requires a finding by the President "that each such operation is important to the national security of the United States." The proposed new subsection. $03(a) would require the President to make an additional determination that the activities "are necessary to support the foreign policy objectives of the United States." This conforms the statute to the Executive branch definition of "special activities" section 3.4(h) of Executive Order 12333 which refers to "activities conducted in support of national foreign policy objectives abroad." The President should determine not only that the operation is important to national security, but also that it is consistent with and in furtherance of established U.S. foreign policy objectives.

In addition to reflecting these presidential determinations. Findings must meet five conditions. First, paragraph 503(a)(1) would require that each Finding be in writing. unless immediate action is required of the United States and time does not permit the preparation of a written Finding, in which case a written record of the President's decision would have to be contemporaneously made and reduced to a written Finding as soon as possible but in no event more than 48 hours after the decision is made. This requirement should prevent a President's subordinate from later claiming to have received oral authorization without further substantiation than the subordinate's undocumented assertion. It is also consistent with the President's current policy of requiring written Findings

Second, paragraph 503(a)(2) would restate emphatically the current legal ban on retroactive Findings. It would provide that a Finding may not authorize or sanction special activities, or any aspects of such activities, which have already occurred. This is also consistent with the President's current

Third, paragraph 503(a)(3) would require that each Finding specify each and every department, agency or entity of the United States Government authorized to fund or otherwise participate in any way in the special activities authorized in the Finding. This requirement is consistent with section 1.8rel of Executive Order 12333 which states that no agency except the ClA in peacetime may conduct any special activity "unless the Fresident determines that another agency is more likely to achieve a particular objective."

Fourth, paragraph 503:a ¥4: would require that each Pinding specify in accordance with procedures to be established, any third

The intent is that pracee established in consultation with intelligence committees to determine on the involvement of a third party constitutes was "to fund or otherwise particiste" in a special activity and to determine when a private party is not "subject to U.S. Clevernment policies and regulations.

Fifth, paragraph $03(a×5) would establish that a Finding may not authorise any action that would be inconsistent with or contrary to any statute of the United States. This is similar to section 2.5 of Executive Order 12333, which states that nothing in that Order "shall be construed to authorize any activity in violation of the Constitution or statutes of the United States." Current CIA moints to to conform its operations to any federal statutes which apply to special ac-Mykies, either directly or as laws of general application. This provision is not intended so require that special activities authorized in Presidential Pindings comply with statutory limitations which, by their terms, apply omb to another U.S. Government program or activity. Per example, a statutory restricm on the overt Delense Department arms transfer program would not apply to covert Cla arms transfers authorized in a Pinding. even if the CIA obtained the arms from the Defense Department under the Economy Act. When the Congressional concerns that led to the restriction on the Defense Depertment program are selevant to the simiher povert Cla activity, those factors should be taken into account by the intelligence committees

thi Fi by and Currently Informed

Subsection 563(b) would place a statutory shiigation on Executive branch officials to keep the intelligence committees fuffix and currently informed of special activities and furnish the intelligence committees any to-formation or material concerning special activities which they possess and which is requested by other of the intelligence committees in order to carry out its authorized responsibilities. This subsection differs in four respect from the parallel provisions of Section 502 that apply to other intelligence activities

The first difference is that the obligation would be placed on the President, as well as on the DCl and the heads of departments, agencies and entities of the U.S. Government. The President may have unious information concerning a special activity that should be imparted to the committees.

The second difference is that the obligation would be placed on the heads of departments agencies, and entities of the U.S. Government "authorized to fund or otherwise participate in a special activity" rather than just those directly involved in the activity. This conforms to the terms of the presidential Finding requirement in subsection 563:673.

The third difference is that the requirement to inform the committees of "any significant anticipated intelligence activity" would be deleted in the case of special activities, that requirement would be superceded by the requirements in subsections 50%: ) and (d. discussed below, for report mr. presidential Findings and significant

(c) Notice of Pinkings

Subsection 503(c) would require the Fresh dent to ensure that any Findings issued pursuant to subsection (a) above, shall be reported to the intelligence committees oon as possible, but in no event later than 48 hours after it has been signed. If, howev er the President determines it is essential to Henit access to the Finding to meet extraordinary circumstances affecting vital in-terests of the United States, such Pinding may be reported to $ Members of Congress—the chairman and ranking minority embers of the intelligence committees, the Speaker and minority leader of the House of Representatives, and the majority and minerity leaders of the Senate. This procedure is similar to the existing provision to chause (B) of the current paragraph $01(a)(1) for limiting prior notice of "significant anticipated intelligence activities the same & congressional leaders.

The principal differences from existing have are the elimination of the preambular chauses in the current subsection $01(a) that quality clause (1%b) and the delection of the separate provision in the current subse-tion solicity for "timely" motice when prinotice is not given. These current provision : have created confusion because appear, on the one hand, to require motioe of Fundings to at least the 8 leaders while. on the other hand leaving open the possi bility of postponement of notice until some time after a Finding is implemented. The proposed new subsection 503(c) changes the point of reference in the law from notice perior to the initiation of an activity to the more logical point of nouce immediately upon the issuance of a Finding Subsection 503.b. would also require that in al. cases a certified copy of the Finding signed by the President shall be provided to the chairman of each intelligence committee and that, if access is limited, a statement of the reasons for limiting access to the Finding concerned shall accompany the copy of the Finding.

Id Notice of Significant Change:

Subsection 503(d) would require the Presdent to ensure that the intelligence commit tees, or, it applicable, the 8 leaders specified in subsection (c), are promptly notified s any significant change in any previously-approved special activity. The intent is that much changes should be reported unsolar m practicable prior to their implementation, in accordance with procedures agreed upon by the intelligence committees and the Presdent Such procedures currently exist in the form of agreements entered into between the DCI and the Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee to 1984 and 1986. Any change in the actual terms and conditions of a Finding would desired the set of the

As stated, the definition of "special solivilies" set forth in section 803(e) is based upon the definition of the term more set forth in section 8.8(h) of Enceptive order 22332. Assued by President Reagan on Desember 4, 1981. Indeed, the first and principal discuss of the definition is taken verbulies from the definition in the Executive order. The exclusionary clauses, exempting certain activities from the scope of the definition, are for the most part modifications of, or additions to, 1 he exclusions contained in the Executive order definition.

As defined in section $03(e), a "special acany activity conducted in support Livies' of mational foreign policy objectives abroad which is planned and executed so that the role of the United States Government is not apparent or acknowledged publicly, and ections in support of such activity. The definition covers all govert activities under taken by the United States to support its foreign policy objectives sowards other sountries regardiess of the department. rency, ar element of the United States overnment used to easily out such activi-Mes. While it applies so those activities conducted in support of mational foreign policy abjectives abroad the term encompasses se activities conducted by the United States Government within the territory of e United States, so long as they are intended to support U.S. sbjectives stread The definition applies only to activities in which the rale of the U.S. Government is mal apparent or admostledged to the public. Thus, activities of the United States Cov. ernment conducted in support of nation foreign policy objectives which are made known to the public, or which would be made known to the public or press if the Government were asked, are not covered by the definition

The definition also makes clear that special activities shall not be intended to influence U.S. political processes, public opinion. policies or media. The purpose of this language is to preclude the use of the authority contained in this bill to plan or execute special activities for the purpose of influencing U.S. public opinion. While R & recognized that some special activities may occasionally have an indirect effect on U.S. public opurfor, no such activity may be instituted for this purpose, and to the extent such indirect effect can be minimized in the planning and execution of special activities, it should be done. This portion of the definition reite: ates what has been longstanding policy and practice within the Executive branch

The definition further specifies four broad areas at activity undertaken by the United States Government in support of foreign policy objectives which are not undered within the definition of special activities even if planned and conducted activities even if planned and conducted activities to role of the United States Government is not apparent or acknowledged publicly. These include activities to collect necessary intelligence, inflittany operations considered by the armed forces of the United States and subject to the War Powers Resolution (50 U.S.C. 1841-1848), dipiomatic ac-

The exclusion of U.S. activities to collect mocessary intelligence is intended to cover all activities of the United States Government undertaken for the purpose of obtaining intelligence necessary for the national security of the United States. While such activities clearly require oversight by the Congress, they are excluded from the definition of "special activities", inasmuch as they are subject to separate authorization and oversight, and often do not require specific approval by the President. This exclusion retterates the longstanding policy contained in the Hughes-Ryan amendment (24 U.S.C. 2422) (1974) and in subsequent Executive orders.

The exclusion of military operations conducted by the armed forces of the United States and subject to the War Powers Resc-Muton (56 U.S.C. 1541-1548) is new, appear ing in neither statute or Executive order heretofore. The purpose of this exclusion is to clarify a problem of interpretation namely, when is a military operation undertaken by the United States reportable as a special activity" or covert action? The definition sets forth a clear dividing line: if the military operation concerned is carried out covertly by U.S. military forces and it is not required to be reported to the Congress under the War Powers Resolution, then it is "special activity" which is reportable to the intelligence committees under this stat-The exclusion would not apply covert assistance given by the United States to the military forces, or to support the military operations, of a third party, either governmental or to private entities.

The third area excluded from the definition of special activities is diplomatic activitres carried out by the Department of State or persons otherwise acting pursuant to the authority of the Pr sident. This represents a modification of the comparable exclusion in Executive order $2333. Although most diplomatic activities of the United States are publicly acknowledged. It is recognized that there are many diplomatic contacts deliberations which are necessarily and The definition of special activities excludes these activities so long as they are undertaken by the Department of State, or by persons-either government officials of private citizens-whi are acting pursuant to the authority of the President. It would not exclude diplomatic a dvities which are car ried out by persons who are not employees of the Department of State-either governmental of private-whose authority to carry out such activities on behalf of the United States is not already established by law of Executive branch pond

The fourth and final area excluded from the definition of special activities are activities of the Department of Justice or federal hav enforcement aponder solely to provide wastance to mak enforcement authorities of foreign governments. This exclusion is also new reflected neither in law nor Executive order hereloidre lie incorporation here is uniendes to ciarify a problem of interpreta tion which has existed under the current framework, namely, ac law enforcement ac uvine undertaker coverily by U.S. Govern ment agencies outside the United States quality as anecial activities. BECTION 3. LIMITATION OF DEE OF PERIOD FOR SPECIAL SCRIVITUS

Bection 3 of the MD redesignates section 802 of the National Security Act of 1947, which concerns the funding of intelligence activities, as section 504 of the Act and adds a new subsection (d) which deals with the use of funds for special activities.

This provision is intended to carry forward and expand the limitation currently contained in 22 U.S.C. 2422 (the Hughes-Ryan Amendment), which would be repealed by Section 1 of the bill The Hughes-Ryan amendment restricts the use of funds appropriated, to ClA to carry out actions outside the United States "other than the collection of necessary intelligence", unless and until the President had determined that such actions were important to the national accurate.

Section 504(d) would similarly provide that appropriated funds could not be expended for special activities until the President had signed, or otherwise approved, a Finding authorizing such activities, but it would expand this limitation to cover the funds appropriated for any department, agency, or entity of the Government, not solely CIA. It would also cover non-appropriated funds which are available to such elements from any source, over which the agency involved exercises control. These might include funds offered or provided by third parties, funds produced as a result of intelligence activities (i.e. proprietaries), or funds originally appropriated for an agency other than the agency who wishes to expend the funds The limitation contained in section 504(d) would also apply whether or not the agency concerned actually came into possession of the funds at issue. So long as the agency concerned had the ability to direct such funds be expended by third parties-governmental or private-it could not do so until a presidential Finding had been signed, or otherwise approved, in accordance with the requirements of section 503(a)

SECTION 4. REDESIGNATION OF SECTION 503 OF NATIONAL SECURITY ACT OF 1947

Section 4 redesignates section 502 of the National Security Act of 1947 as section 503, to conform to the changes made by the bill.

TEUT OF THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER ON NEW GUIDELINES FOR COVERT OPERATIONS Hon. David L. Boren

Chairman, Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.
The Honorable Louis Stokes and the Honorable Henry J. Hyde

DEAF CHAIRMAN BOREN: In my March $1 1987 message to Congress. I reported on those step: I had taken and intended to take to intrigement the recommendations of the Fresident's Specia. Review Board. These included a comprehensive review of executive branch procedures concerning Presidential approva and notification to Congress of covert-action programs—or su-called special and mides.

In my message, I noted that the reforms and changes I had made and would make "are evidence of my determination to return to proper procedures including consultation with the Congress."

In this regard. Frank Carture, has presented to me the suggestions developed by

The control of the co

Specifically, I want to express my support for the following key concepts recommended by the committee:

1. Except in cases of extreme emergency, all national security "findings" should be to writing. If an oral directive is necessary, a record should be made contemporaneously, and the finding reduced to writing and signed by the President as soon as possible, but in no event more than two working days thereafter. All findings will be made available to members of the Rational Security Council (N.S.C.).

2. No Pinding should retroactively authorize or sanction a special activity.

3. If the President directs any agency or persons outside of the C.I.A. or traditional intelligence agencies to conduct a special activity, all applicable procedures for approval of a finding and notification to Congress shall apply to such agency or persons.

4. The intelligence committees should be appropriately informed of participation of any Government agencies private parties, or other countries involved in assisting with special activities.

5. There should be a regular and periodic seview of all ongoing special activities both by the intelligence committees and by the N.S.C. This review should be made to determine whether each such activity is continuing to serve the purpose for which it was instituted. Pindings should terminate or "sunset" at periodic intervals unless the President, by appropriate action, continues them in force.

6. I believe we cannot conduct an effective program of special activities without the cooperation and support of Congress. Effective consultation with the intelligence committees is essential, and I am determined to ensure that these committees can discharge their statutory responsibilities in this area In all but the most exceptional circum timely notification to Congress ELETION. under Section 501(b) of the National Securi ty Act of 1947, as amended will not be de layed beyond two working days of the intial, of a special activity. Write I believe that the current statutory framework is adequate, new executive branch procedures nevertheless are desirable to ensure that the spirit of the law is fully implemented. Accordingly, I have directed my staff to draft for my signature executive documents to implement appropriately the principles set forth in this letter.

While the President must retain the flexibility as Commander in Chief and chief executive to exercise those constitutional at thortite, necessary to safeguare the nationand its citizent maximum consultation and notification is and will be the firm policy of this Administration.

Sincerely.

Mr. BENTSEN Mr. President. I am pleased today to join my colleagues in introducing the "Intelligence Oversight Act of 1987." This legislation continues the pattern of statutory strengthening of the intelligence oversight process that was established 46 are ago by the National Sapurity Let of 1947. In the ensuing years, Opngress has exacted other legislation in this area, including most recently the Poreign Intelligence Burvelliance Act of 1978, the Intelligence Oversight Act of 1980, and the Intelligence Identities Protection Act of 1982. Each of these pieces of legislation responded to a requirement that was identified at the time, ranging from the need to strengthen our counterintelligence capabilities in the first instance to a lifeand-death situation where CIA agents' identities were being publicly revealed in the past. The legislation we are introducing today, too, grows out of our own recent experience.

One of the lessons that we learned during the investigation of the Iranian arms saies and diversion of profits to the Contras is that current oversight statutes particularly in the area of covert action reporting are simply not specific enough. Indeed, it had become obvious during the preliminary investigation conducted by the Select Committee on Intelligence late last year unat there were gaps and loopholes in our oversight laws and that there were some individuals within the executive branch who exploited these loopholes as a means of avoiding congressional notification of a covert operation.

To be specific, there is currently a statutory requirement that the oversight committees of Congress be notified in advance of covert actions, or must be notified "in a timely fashion" after the fact. This loophole of timely fashion" was broad enough to allow the administration not to report the Iranian arms sales for some 18 months. I doubt they would have reported them even then, except that a small newspaper in the Middle East proke the story in November of last year.

The legislation that we are introducing today closes that loophole by requiring that the President provide written notification to the Oversight Committees of the Congress within for 48 nours after he has authorized a covers action. If he believes that the action is too sensitive to reveal to the entire mempership of the Intelligence Committees he would be authorized to limit notification to the chairmen and ranking members of those commattees the majority and minority leaders of the Senate and the Speaker and minority leader of the House. Notification of these eight individuals would insure that we do not have are other situation where our country is empareed on a course of action with potentially grave foreign policy implications without notifying the Congress that such was about to be done.

Unlike present law, which does not require Presidential approval for covert activities conducted by agencies other than the CIA this legislation spells out for the first time that the President must personally approve each covert action or "special activity," as they are sometimes called So tween the legislative and executive ere will be no doubt his by neighbal has sintherhold b When he buthorised it, our legirequires that a Presidential finding be in writing and that a copy of each finding must be transmitted to the Intelligence Committees within 48 hours after it is signed Retroactive findings such as were used in the Iran arms saies would be pronibited.

In other sections, this legislation would spell out for the first time the statutory power of the President to authorize covert actions. It also provides that no finding which authorizes a covert action can operate contrary to statute and that no funds can be used for a covert action unless there is a finding. Taken together, it seems to me inat these requirements represent a reasonable approach to the problem of regaining control over covert actions, while at the same time not in any way harming or endangering our Nation's ability to conduct such operations.

Mr. President, I would like to close this statement on a more personal note. I have been a member of the Select Committee on Intelligence for aimost 7 years now. In time of service on the committee I am the senior member on the Democratic side. During these years it has been my privilege to have had weekly, and sometimes almost daily, contact with the men and women of our Nation's intelligence services. The work that they do for our country is absolutely invaluable, and many of them routinely put their lives on the line with little or no public recognition.

Indeed, when public recognition does occur, it can sometimes mean death, as in the case of William Buckley who was CIA station chief in Beirut. Buckley was taken nostage, tortured, and killed because of what he was doing for his country-our country. There are similar men and women all over the world doing their jobs in silence and without public praise. In the lobby of the ClA headquarters building in Langley. VA. there are rows of gold stars carved into the wall. Each of those stars represents a CIA employee who was killed serving his country. Beneath the stars is a display case in which has been placed an open book. There are names in the book representing most of the stars on the wall but there are blank lines as well, for some of these CIA employees still cannot be publicly identified even 35 years later

Mr. President. I end with these sen timents because I want to make it clear that in sponsoring this legislation today. I am not aiming it at the men and women of the intelligence community. I am not criticizing them for the job they do for us each and every day. No. 1 am not introducing this legislation as a way of strengthening the oversight process, continuing the pattern of the past 40 years, and making our Nation's partnership be-ranches to this area a stronger and Even more productive one.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President. ents of recent months have highhighted the importance of congressional oversight of intelligence activities. The oversight function, performed by the two Select Intelligence Committees-one in the House and one in the Senate—is the means by which this democracy reconciles the people's right to know with the intelligence agencies need for secrecy.

Under existing law the intelligence agencies are obliged to keep the two communities currently informed of significant intelligence activities, including covert action. However, ambiguities inherent in existing statutes were dramatically highlighted during the recently concluded congressional investigation of the Iran-Contra affair. It is important that these ambiguities are eliminated so that the ground rules are clearly understood in both the Executive and the Congress and the temptation to look for loopholes is reduced.

As an outgrowth of painstaking negotiations on these issues between the staffs of the Senate Intelligence Community and the National Security Council, the committee sent a letter to the President's National Security Adviser. The legislation closely follows the provisions contained in that letter.

This bill does not impose new and more onerous burdens upon the intelligence agencies. Rather, it clarifies and rationalizes existing lav. For example, this bill will, for the first time. explicitly empower the President to authorize covert actions and establish a Presidential "finding" as the authorizing document.

I am pleased to join with my distinguished colleague from Maine, the vice chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, in cosponsoring this legislation.
